DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-4 and 6-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by

Peterson (US Patent 6,540,250 B1). Peterson discloses a transporter (10) to facilitate the movement of a person having impaired or no self-locomotion from a location at a first elevation and location to a higher or lower elevation at a laterally spaced-apart location (See Figs. 1-2), comprising a base (22) having a horizontal orientation and a vertical axis; wheels (58,60) enabling said base to be moved in said horizontal orientation; a platform (30) having a flat upper surface (20) normal to said axis; a jack (34,36) mounted to said base below said platform, extending between them so as to enable and the power the elevation of the platform relative to the base; a power source (38,40) to activate said jack; a control (41) to permit actuation of said jack by said power source; said platform being substantially planar and smooth whereby to facilitate the lateral sliding movement of a person resting on it; [claim 2] wherein said jack includes a threaded screw (See Fig. 9) having locking characteristics whereby to prevent lowering of the platform except when the screw is positively turned; [claims 3 and 8] wherein said base includes an axially-extending guide (26), and said platform includes a downwardlyextending peripheral skirt (28), whereby to shroud said jack from outside contact (See Fig. 2); [claims 4 and 9] wherein said platform includes a removably attached stabilizer (16) to frustrate lateral movement of a person from said platform in at least one direction; [claims 6 and 10] wherein said power source is a bi-directionally driven electric motor (38); [claims 7 and 11] wherein there is a plurality of wheels at least some of which are steerable (see column 4, lines 40-42) and lockable (see column 4, line 52); and [claim 12] wherein a pair of lips (18) depend from opposite edges of said platform to provide a hand hold for a transported person.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Peterson (US Patent 6,540,250 B1) in view of Stensby (US Patent 5,050,899). Peterson discloses a transporter as set forth above, but does not disclose wherein said stabilizer comprises a post, and a socket in said platform to receive said post. Stensby discloses a transporter having a stabilizer (142) having a post (144), and a socket (140) in said platform to receive said post. At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in this art to provide the stabilizer disclosed in Peterson with a post and a socket in the platform to receive the post as taught by Stensby. The motivation for doing so would have been to allow the stabilizer to be quickly added or removed from the transporter.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record in the accompanying PTO Form 892 and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
